The Royal Australian Air Force (RAAF) was established in 1921, built on the foundations laid by its forerunner, the Australian Flying Corps, during the First World War. Ever since, the RAAF has played a vital role in Australia's military operations. From the Second World War, through Korea, Borneo, Malaya, Vietnam, the Persian Gulf and Afghanistan to peacekeepers and humanitarian operations, air force personnel have earned the respect of Australians and people around the world.

Lest We Forget
Thomas Henry KEEN, RAAF, No. 9351
 and his fellow crew members of Catalina flying boat A24-9

Thomas Henry KEEN was born in Townsville in 1915 but was living in Gladstone when he enlisted in the RAAF in 1940. In Jan 1942, he was serving on Royal Australian Air Force Catalina Number A24-9. These were flying boats. They were lightly armed with vintage World War I Lewis guns, they had no fighter protection and were at the mercy of the agile Japanese Zeros.

The captain was U.S. Navy pilot Lt. George Leland HUTCHISON. They were operating from Port Moresby, New Guinea and Catalina A24-9 was brought down by Zeros near Lae about noon on 21 January, 1942. Their skipper, had managed to obtain nine parachutes for this trip. Previous missions had not carried any parachutes. Only one man survived, thanks to his parachute, Thomas Henry KEEN.

The crew was LAC MEADOW, the wireless operator, on the bow gun, Lt. HUTCHISON at the controls. LAC DOWNES and Sgt. COOTE on the radio, MURPHY up in the engineer's seat under the fuel tanks, LAC CRAIGIE on the twin guns portside and Pilot Officer Tommy ROWE, the second pilot, between the Perspex blisters to act as fire-controller. Cpl. Tom KEEN was with the twin Lewis guns on the starboard side and newly arrived Sgt. Jack WYCHE on the single gun in the rear tunnel compartment.

That day their mission was to deliver radio gear to Salamaua on the north coast of New Guinea. They took off at 0735 hours and at about midday the klaxon horn blew "action stations". The wireless operator hurried through and reported, "We've been recalled to base, the Japanese are attacking Lae and Bulolo so we're getting out of danger."

While they were retracing their course along the coastline only this time closer inshore. The intercom announced: "Thirteen or more enemy aircraft on the port bow about five miles." Soon all hell broke loose as explosions burst very close. Flames and smoke were everywhere and it was impossible to see overhead. The plane was alight with a third of its wing gone.

The Captain told Tom on the intercom that everyone up front was dead and Tom told him, everyone else in the rear was also dead. Tom then realised everyone else was dead when the Captain's voice cut off after another clatter of bullets and the plane went into a steep dive. They were about 4000 feet above the coastal range. Tom saw the parachute and harness jammed between the seat and hull where he'd stowed it earlier. He slammed it on.

Tom was leaning out of the hatch when he was suddenly sucked through and the parachute pack tore loose from the harness as he fell. He panicked when he thought the chute was gone, then he saw it above him still in its envelope. The webbing straps had been ripped out of their press clipped tabs and the parachute was streaming above him.

Tom climbed up the straps hand over hand until he got his chin over the pack, then he grabbed the ripcord and pulled. It was a fall of some 1,500 feet before there was a flash of white silk and the chute finally opened. Looking down he saw Catalina A24-9 in flames, with the engines still at full throttle, smash at a steep angle into the mountains below. It was followed by a sudden blast and updraft which tore at his body and skin.

Several of the Zeros were circling above with the leader diving directly at him. Tom pretended to be dead and the zeros roared past not firing. Tom noticed a hole in the canopy below him and aimed for it, he ended up hanging about 15 feet above the ground. He turned the release lever and dropped out of the harness, hit the soft ground with a thump and rolled down a slope until he collided with a small tree trunk.

Tom realised his shirt and revolver had been left back in the Catalina. His boots were gone, probably lost in the jump. He tried to head to the wreckage but the slopes were too steep. He then decided to follow the gully down, hoping that it would eventually reach the sea. The ground flattened out and Tom crossed a small swamp at high speed to avoid crocodiles. He also had to crawl through pig tunnels, which ran through the thick undergrowth in order to get through it.

Tom climbed trees to study the lie of the land and eventually, he reached the coast. He had a swim in the beautiful cool sea and washed off the caked mud and blood, and discovered his wrist watch was still functioning and reading 1420 hours.

The area wasn't yet occupied by the enemy so Tom hoped to find a coastal village as soon as possible. He made for a rocky headland where he'd seen two small figures moving off in the distance. He was constantly thirsty as here there were only small salt water creeks.

A heavy passing shower helped and he found he could suck drops of moisture off the wet leaves.

Suddenly the path became a little village but it was as quiet as a tomb. People shyly emerged from hiding and Tom managed to explain in rough Pidgin English how he had arrived there. They understood and indicated that they had seen the battle overhead and seen the "umbrella" descend with the man attached. One of the villagers had once been given basic medical training and tended Tom's wounds.

The people promised to help the injured airman and assisted him from village to village. As the sun set they came towards a huge white man in a pith helmet, khaki shorts and shirt. It was a Mr. Lehner, the German Lutheran 'missionary' at Hopoi. He put his arms around Tom and hugged him like a hurt child.

Lehner had seen the whole action from his house and told Tom that seventeen fighters had been involved. Later, from his verandah, he pointed to a thin column of smoke about five miles away in a direct line. It was drifting up from the last resting place of Catalina A24-9.

The kindly old missionary saw that the Australian was bathed, fed and placed in a comfortable bed. Several times during the night Tom awoke screaming about flames and each time his host was beside him to reassure the airman through to the dawn.

The day after the escape Tom went down the coast by canoe to Malahang. He went by a battered Chevrolet utility to Lae where he saw the havoc and destruction wreaked by the same Japanese fighters he had encountered. He fled inland with a group of civilians, government officers and businessmen from Lae. They all feared eminent invasion after the air raid. After a week of walking with them he was evacuated from a place called Nadzab. The rescue aircraft was a tiny Fox Moth and the flight back between steep and towering mountains was one never to be forgotten. They went first via Wau and Bulolo, which had also seen a Japanese raid. After ten days absence he arrived back in Port Moresby by sleek Lockheed 14.

Tom Keen survived the war and was discharged medically unfit in May 1945. Bad health had plagued him through the years, mainly spinal problems, and he retired in 1976 on a war disability pension. Tom lived in Gladstone Qld, with the majority of his working life, some twenty years, as a wharf superintendent with Dalgety. Tom was a major contributor to this story in 1984 and much of its graphic detail still remained vivid in his memory.

Thomas died, aged 70 years on 5 Nov 1985 and was buried in the Old Gladstone Cemetery. His father, Samuel James KEEN died 23 Sep 1943 aged 54 years and his mother Florence Ann KEEN (nee DOWLING) died 1 Apr 1976 aged 85 years. They are also buried in the Old Gladstone Cemetery.

The crash site of Catalina A24-9 was visited shortly after it came down by Captain ORMSBY of ANGAU (Australia New Guinea Administrative Unit). Although broken in two by the impact, the rear section was still relatively intact. Villagers buried the three bodies they found, marking the positions with tin hats and live bombs!

In May of 1944 the remains were recovered and now permanently rest at the Lae War Cemetery in New Guinea.

Catalina A24-9 had the dubious honour of being the first Catalina and allied reconnaissance aircraft to be shot down in the New Guinea area during World War II and Tom was the sole survivor. A copy of the full article is available in our library.

The 1st Royal Australian Naval Bridging Train

R.A.N.B.T.

<https://www.navy.gov.au/history/feature-histories/1st-royal-australian-naval-bridging-train>

Recently, a friend who I had worked with in Gladstone in the 1980's, told me about his grandfather and his great Uncle who served together in the last Australian unit to leave Gallipoli and they were sailors.

The 1st Royal Australian Naval Bridging Train (1st RANBT) was formed in Melbourne on 28 February 1915 and was intended to be a horse drawn engineering unit attached to the Royal Naval Division (RND), then serving as infantry on the Western Front. The term 'train', in its title, was a direct reference to the horse drawn wagons that would, in theory, form and move 'in train' to carry the unit's heavy lumber, building materials and engineering equipment to the front.

The unit was manned by members of the Royal Australian Naval Reserve for whom there were no available billets in seagoing RAN ships. Many of the sailors serving in the 1st RANBT were rated 'drivers', and again, this refers to wagon drivers as opposed to motor vehicle drivers. Other seamen were rated as 'artificers' or 'sappers', the latter being a military term traditionally used to describe army engineers.

Three hundred naval reservists, including 50 men who had recently served in New Guinea, were selected for the 1st RANBT and they began their training in horsemanship, engineering and pontoon bridging at the Domain in Melbourne.

Due to the nature of their work ashore, the men of the 1st RANBT were dressed in the khaki uniform worn by soldiers of the Australian Imperial Force (AIF). Special badges were adopted to distinguish them as a naval unit which included oxidised brass anchors that were worn on the hats, caps, sleeves and collars of ratings' tunics.

On 4 June 1915 the 1st RANBT sailed from Melbourne in the troopship Port Macquarie bound for active service. In July 1915 they arrived on Mudros, on the Greek island of Lemnos and learned that they were to provide engineering support in connection with the British landings at Suvla Bay to the north of Anzac Cove on the Gallipoli Peninsula. During that time they were to be under British command and control. From Mudros the 1st RANBT transferred to the Greek Island of Imbros which was used as a staging area for the landings at Suvla Bay.

The 1st RANBT set up its camp at what became known as Kangaroo Beach. It was responsible for a wide variety of tasks including: building and maintaining wharves and piers, unloading stores from lighters, controlling the supply of fresh water to front line troops, stock-piling engineering equipment, building a light railway for stores movements and carrying out repairs in an open-air workshop.

These activities took place under frequent enemy artillery fire and occasional air raids which, during their five months at Suvla Bay, killed two and wounded over 30 of its number. Two more men succumbed to disease and many others became sick or were injured in the course of their duties. Despite the regular arrival of reinforcements from Australia the unit was always under strength due to illness or casualties.

In December 1915 the decision to abandon the Gallipoli Peninsula was made and Allied troops were soon being evacuated from the beaches under the cover of darkness. The operation required the wharves to be in constant use and the men of the 1st RANBT were kept busy repairing damage caused by enemy artillery, the elements, normal use and through accident.

The bulk of the men of the 1st RANBT were evacuated from Suvla Bay on the nights of 16 and 17 December 1915, but a small group of 50, under the command of Sub Lieutenant Charles William Hicks, remained behind at Lala Baba Beach, in the southern part of Suvla Bay, to maintain the wharf over which the British rearguard would leave from. These men were kept busy maintaining the wharf, often damaged by shell fire, and were not evacuated until 04:30 on the morning of 20 December 1915; thus the sailors of the 1st RANBT became the last Australian's to leave the Gallipoli Peninsula. The last AIF troops having left Anzac Cove at 04:10 the same day.

The Australian War Memorial lists the details of 268 men in this unit.

Two of them were brothers, who enlisted at the same time, my friend's grandfather, Sidney Easton Percy No.231 and his great Uncle, David Easton Percy No.230. They both returned to Australia in 1917. Sidney was living in Gladstone, Queensland in 1934 and 1936 and he was a "Scenic Artist".

Eight of the 1st RANBT's number died while serving overseas on active service .

Library Report

For most of this year I have been sorting all of our Library's physical resources into what I think will make looking for information on a particular place, event or person a lot easier.

Our holding is categorised into alphabetical order, A – England, B Ireland, C Europe etc., and items receive an accession number in order of acquisition.

I have worked my way through our entire holding and found many items accessioned into the wrong category, this has now been rectified.

Books were placed onto the shelves in their category and in numerical acquisition.

On occasions when more volumes of a series were produced at a later date, these new books were not housed with their mates but in numerical order.

In the main, acquisition numbers have remained the same but in the case of sets or series have given them all the same acquisition number as volume one and numbered them individually e.g. (i),(ii),(iii) etc.

Another change I made was to combine Categories H- General Research, I – Research Aids, and J- Research Agents into H – General Research. We had a double up of some items and these had been placed into two categories. There was so much overlap of information in all these resources it seemed more practical to just have the one category.

In each category I have broken it down into areas or topics and placed on the shelf accordingly. There are markers at the start of each section which should help library users find their area of research and hopefully, are returned to the correct position.

On the top shelf above each category section is an information list of the breakdown topics held in that category. This should further assist in finding a particular item.

I have attached a complete list of the break - down of each category for your information.

Some of our books are in need of repairs and new coverings. If any members have some spare time it would be great to have some assistance. A stock take needs to be done as well so some assistance from members for this would be appreciated.

We have received quite a number of donations to our library over the last few months covering all sections for which we are very grateful

We have just received all the family and local history research from our past member Ruth Crosson who sadly lost her fight for life on 1st December 2019. There is a huge amount of information and I have started sorting, but it is going to take a considerable amount of time to complete.

Thanks to Paulette Flint for the recent donation of maps.

Dan Dan Provisional School

This school was on Tableland Road, on the way to Kroombit Tops, 31 km from Calliope

This small bush school only operated for a short time to accommodate the growing number of children of the local area property owners. The school was erected on land donated to the Education Department by Edward Streeter. The school stood about one mile from the Fairy Springs homestead and around a mile in the other direction from the property "Palmvale" owned by the Walker family. This list of enrollments to the school from 1920 to 1931 was found in Ruth Crosson's (Benedick) research. When the school closed the Mackay family moved the building to their property "Callemondah".

Robert Payne

Convict-Exile and Pioneer of Gladstone, Queensland

This article has come about through a happy co-incidence. When our secretary, who is a War Widow, received a request for research about this family, the name seemed familiar to her. She realised Belinda, a Legatee, i.e. a volunteer who helps War Widows, was also researching this family for the Gladstone Army Reserve 41/42nd Battalion. The Battalion wished to name a building in honour of a local member of the 42nd Battalion who had died in World War 1.

The photo of the “Roll of Honour Town of Gladstone and the Shire of Calliope” was kindly provided by the Gladstone Regional Art Gallery and Museum.

Belinda researched John Payne No.2860, (and his family) who enlisted 27 Oct 1917. He lived in the Boyne Valley, Calliope. He said he was a widower with no children and was 44 years old. He was killed in action 4 Oct 1917 and has no known grave.

His name is on the “Roll of Honour for the Town of Gladstone and the Shire of Calliope”, in the Gladstone Regional Art Gallery and Museum and on the Cenotaph in Calliope. His name is on Panel 136 of the Roll of Honour at The Australian War Memorial and on Panel 27 at the Menin Gate Memorial at Ypres, Belgium.

Belinda and Yvonne checked the cemetery records and plans of the Gladstone Cemetery and discovered that the father of John Payne was buried in an unmarked grave. With help from the Gladstone Regional Council and some very long tape measures they were able to determine where the gravesite was and marked it with a book and some white paint on the grass to take a photo– see page 16. Details are: Burial ID 96A, Position 1, Row 13, Section G, Gladstone Cemetery. We were able to contact the family and exchange information. They were delighted and so were we.

Robert Payne

Robert Payne was born in Crosshaven, County Cork, Ireland around 1830 to Robert Payne and Margaret Connor. Between 1830 and 1848 the family moved to Youghal (pronounced ‘Yawl’) which is 52 km from Cork and 65 km from Crosshaven.

At the age of 18, Robert was charged with ‘robbery of firearms’ and committed on 18 June 1848 to stand trial. He was tried at the July court sessions held in Youghal. Robert was found guilty and convicted on 3 July 1848 and sentenced to seven years imprisonment.

The extract below from the Irish Prison Register

Name: Robert Payne

Education: R W

If in custody, or how disposed of: Delivered to constabulary

Robert’s accomplice - the 17-year-old Jeremiah Scannell (or Scanlon) – received the same sentence.

The Havering

Robert was one of 336 Irish convict exiles on the Havering. It was the 2nd last ship to transport convicts to New South Wales.

About Convict Exiles

In 1848, British Secretary of State, Earl Grey, devised a scheme to continue to send convicts to New South Wales, although convict transportation had effectively ceased 1842. They were to be 'convict exiles' and supposedly not been sentenced to transportation but were to have already served part of their sentence in a penitentiary prior to transportation. Upon arrival in the colony, they were to be granted a conditional pardon or a ticket of leave.

Despite intense public outcry, the scheme went ahead. The Havering and five other ships brought approximately 1650 convict exiles to NSW between 1849 and 1850.

More about Robert Payne

Towards the end of June 1849, after nearly twelve months in prison, Robert and 168 other prisoners in Cork County Gaol were about to be taken aboard the Havering convict ship for transportation to NSW. The Havering was a new ship of 700 tons but a delay in the departure of the Havering meant that Robert spent nearly a month more in prison. It eventually left Dublin on 4 August 1849 with 167 prisoners on board. A further 169 prisoners (presumably including Robert Payne) were then taken aboard at Cobh. Cobh is the deep-water port of Cork It was known as Queenstown from 1850-1922. All the Irish exiles on the Havering had been tried and sentenced in Ireland in the period 1846-48.

The Havering arrived in Sydney on 8 Nov 1849, after a 96-day voyage. The ship was not allowed to disembark the convicts. Given the strong public opposition to exiles, the prisoners from the Havering were hastily dispatched in groups of around thirty to areas outside Sydney including Bathurst, Maitland, Moreton Bay, Port Macquarie, Scone, Mudgee and Singleton districts.

Robert Payne was one of the thirty-two Havering convict exiles sent to Moreton Bay, twelve of whom came from County Cork. He was one of eight prisoners from the Havering transferred to the steamer Eagle which left Sydney on 20 Nov for Moreton Bay and arrived on 24 Nov 1849.

1850s view of Queen St Brisbane

The Eagle was a 244 tons (gross) 80 horsepower wooden paddle steamer built in 1848 by Thomas Chowne, Pyrmont, Sydney. It had two side lever engines from the old paddle steamer James Watt. As a passenger and cargo vessel, it plied the Hunter River to Moreton Bay and Sydney routes. At the time of its launch at Pyrmont in August 1848 it was the largest steamer then built in the colony.

Robert was granted a ticket of leave, number 49/970, on 30 Nov 1849, he was allowed to stay in Moreton Bay and to work for Mr Foster. Robert completed his seven-year sentence in July 1855 and would have been issued with a certificate of freedom.

In 1861 Robert Payne was in Gladstone and married Elizabeth Haycock (nee Cooling) at the Gladstone courthouse on 6 February. The ceremony was conducted by an Anglican minister, John Sutton. The marriage certificate describes Robert as a labourer and Elizabeth as a widow and a domestic servant. The witnesses were William Hay and Elizabeth Hay.

Elizabeth Cooling was born in Marston Oxfordshire to Thomas Couling and Eliza Farris. She was christened at St Nicholas' on 25 Dec 1837. Elizabeth's parents Thomas (agricultural labourer) and Eliza were married in the Church of St Thomas the Martyr, Oxford, on 2 Sept 1832. Neither of them could sign the register.

Elizabeth Cooling married Joseph Haycock in a civil ceremony at the registry office in Oxford on 1 January 1857. Elizabeth and Joseph Haycock migrated to Australia the year after their marriage, departing London on the Grand Trianon on 12 April 1858.

The marriage of Elizabeth and Joseph did not last long because in October 1860, Elizabeth inserted this small notice in the Morton Bay Courier: 23 Oct 1860 (p 3)

My Husband, Joseph HAYCOCK, having left me for two years, and I have not received information of his death, and if he should be living, I give public notice if I do not hear from him in three months I intend to get married.
ELIZABETH HAYCOCK, Calliope, October 15, 1860.

Robert and Elizabeth had ten children over a period of eighteen years but it appears two died at birth or soon after and were not registered.

William Henry b 14 April 1862 Gladstone, George Edward b 17 April 1864 Kroombit, Thomas b 15 Dec 1867 Kroombit, Eliza Agnes b 12 Oct 1868 Gladstone, John b 2 March 1871 Saltwater Creek, Robert James b 31 Aug 1873, Charles b 11 Oct 1876, Emma Ellen b 16 March 1880 Saltwater Creek Gladstone.

Robert and Elizabeth were at Kroombit from at least April 1864 (birth of George Edward) to possibly late 1870 or early 1871. The Qld Electoral Roll has Robert Payne (on a salary) at Kroombit in 1867 and Robert Payne is in the 1868 Gladstone PO Directory as being an overseer at Kroombit. The Qld Electoral Roll has Robert at Kroombit in 1871.

At this time Robert and Elizabeth would have had four children of school age: William 12, George 10, Thomas 7 and Eliza 6. Robert began working at the Calliope Saw Mills around October 1870. It appears that the family moved from Kroombit to Saltwater Creek just before their fifth surviving child - John - was born in March 1871 at Saltwater Creek.

The 1871 Queensland Census (taken on Sept 1) noted that Saltwater Creek had a population of 26 people living in six houses. The Payne family (Robert, Elizabeth and their five children) made up 27% of the total.

On 21 September 1872, Robert was witness to a fatal industrial accident at the Calliope Saw Mills, the report in the Rockhampton Bulletin (24 Sept 1872 p 2) indicated that the mill was situated on the south bank of the Calliope River eight miles upstream from Gladstone. In 1872, Robert was working on the vertical saws at the Calliope Saw Mills and gave evidence to an enquiry into the death of a fellow workman (foreman John Groves) and severe injury to others resulting from a boiler explosion. Robert stated in his deposition that he had been at the mill for nearly two years. Although Robert was working at the Calliope Saw Mills in 1872, by 1874 he was, as indicated in the school's admission registers, a puntsman, responsible for transporting logs to the sawmill.

Robert was in the news in August 1874 in connection with the official opening of the Calliope River State School No. 165 which opened on 11 August 1874 and closed in December 1881.

He was elected to the committee of the new school, no doubt due to his efforts in lobbying for a school in the area. All eight Payne children attended Calliope River State School, with five of them in the school's first intake. William, George and Thomas were enrolled on the day of the school's 'opening for business' on 10 August 1874. Eliza Agnes was enrolled as Agnes a week later on 17 August 1874. John was enrolled on 7 September 1874. Robert James was enrolled as James on 20 Feb 1877, and Charles on 22 March 1881.

In November 1882 a new Provisional School Calliope River No.7 was opened and closed again in 1893. Calliope Provisional School No.781 was open from 1897 until 1905. Calliope River State School No 1340 opened on 27 May 1912. It was renamed Beecher State School in 1919. Beecher State School closed on 4 July 1943.

William left school in July 1878, George in Sept 1880, Thomas in April 1879 and Agnes in Nov 1881. Saltwater Creek is given as the birthplace of Emma Ellen and it is the address on the school admission registers. It is also the place given for Robert's place of death aged 52 of a liver complaint on 29 July 1882.

He is buried in the Gladstone Cemetery Burial ID 96A, Position 1, Row 13, Section G, Church of England section. His death certificate, with details certified by son William Henry (of Saltwater Creek), says he was 30 at the time of his marriage. His death certificate also states that Robert had been in Australia for 30 years (actually 32 years).

Robert's death left Elizabeth a widow with children ranging from their youngest daughter, Emma Ellen (2) to their firstborn William Henry (20). In addition to Emma at home, at least two of the children would still have been at school. It certainly would not have been an easy time for Elizabeth.

Robert had purchased land at Saltwater creek, Portion 102, Parish of Auckland (County of Clinton - Gladstone Land Agent's District - Port Curtis). The Payne property fronted a mangrove swamp and Clyde Creek. It was directly across the road from Calliope River State School which later became Beecher State School, Portion 101 in the Parish of Auckland.

He wrote his will on 19th July and left the land to his wife, Elizabeth, and passed away on 29th July 1882. He was a labourer. He had been suffering with a liver complaint for seven months. He last saw his Doctor on 7th May, 1882.

Elizabeth stayed in Saltwater Creek for nearly two years after the death of her husband Robert then after April 1884 she moved with her children to Rockhampton. John left school in March 1883. The three children still at Calliope River State School (James, Charles and Ellen) were taken off the rolls in April 1884.

Her daughter Eliza Agnes married in Rockhampton in 1887 at the age of 19. Elizabeth was by then living in Rockhampton probably with Eliza and her other younger children Charles, Robert, John and Nellie (Emma Ellen) and possibly Thomas.

Rockhampton Central Boys State School was attended by three of the Payne children: John (Oct 1884 – June 1885), Robert James (June 1884 – July 1885), Charles (May 1884 to May 1889).

Three different addresses were given for the three enrolments: Depot Hill, Kent St and Boldon St respectively.

John who left school in March 1883, re-enrolled eighteen months later in Rockhampton.

Marriages of Robert and Elizabeth's children.

1884, 8th January, son, William Henry Payne married Louisa Worthington.

1887, 28th July, George Edward, son, married Georgina Grace McLennan.

1887, 26th December, daughter, Eliza Agnes Payne married John Thomas Fell at Rockhampton.

1887, 26th December, son, Thomas Payne married "Kate" Rogerson.

1898, 25 June, daughter, Emma Ellen Payne married Charles Robert Spencer.

1900, 23rd May, Charles, son, married Esther Allen

1907, Robert James, son, married Elizabeth Florence Patterson Niven in New Zealand

Death of Elizabeth.

Elizabeth Payne (previously Haycock) nee Cooling, Elizabeth passed away on the 12th May 1902 at the Rockhampton Hospital aged 64 years. She had Morbus Cordis and Heart Failure. She had seen her Doctor that day. The informant was her daughter, Eliza Agnes Fell of Nobbs Street, Rockhampton. She was buried on 13th May at the Rockhampton Cemetery. She had spent the last 43 years in Queensland, Australia.

* NEW PUBLICATION ****
BOYNE VALLEY CEMETERY INDEX
Burial Records

Launched at the 35th birthday celebrations of the Genealogical Society Gladstone District on Saturday 22 September 2019, the Boyne Valley Cemetery Index is a new publication for the Society put together over the last twelve months by member, Paulette Flint, from death records originally compiled by Life Member, Melva Bensted.

This index incorporates burial records for the three cemeteries in the Boyne Valley district of Gladstone Regional Council, Nagoorin Cemetery, Norton Cemetery and Many Peaks/Builyan Cemetery. All these cemeteries are now closed for burial. Nagoorin Cemetery received a facelift in 2018 with new fences and a plaque listing burials placed in the cemetery. The Norton Cemetery is not maintained by Gladstone Regional Council.

The Many Peaks Cemetery is erroneously entitled Builyan Cemetery both on the signage at the cemetery and on the Gladstone Regional Council website. Originally, it was the Many Peaks Cemetery, although some burial records in the index state Builyan Cemetery. It should be more correctly named, Builyan/Many Peaks Cemetery, or Many Peaks/Builyan Cemetery. It is situated in the Builyan locality.

Some 186 burials are listed in the index which was taken from the original death records of the Gladstone District Court.

The records include: Surname, First Names, Sex, Age, Occupation, Death Date, Death Place, Burial Place and Parents' names. Parents' names were taken from the Queensland Birth Death and Marriage Index online, and thus may include their transcription errors. Where no parents were mentioned, the records annotate "Unknown" or "Unnamed".

It also includes: The whole index in PDF format, plus available photographs of the remaining headstones and some other cemetery photographs, stories taken from newspaper articles, a map of grave locations in Many Peaks Cemetery, information about each Cemetery and some death certificates, all on a USB stick.

Postage of a USB stick is much cheaper than the cost of a printed copy. It is $20, plus postage and packing if posted.

What's in a Name? The Stories behind the Street Names of Gladstone Queensland

by Paulette Flint—Purchase Price: $30 (AUD) plus postage and packaging ($14)

What's in a Name?" affords a fascinating glimpse into the stories behind the street names of the city of Gladstone. From the untimely death of the first Mayor and highly esteemed Postmaster, Richard Hetherington, who stumbled into the hold of the 'SS Queensland' when delivering the mail at night, to the downfall of William Edward Hilliard, the Sub-collector of Customs. Hilliard collected more than his share of the profits and subsequently became a guest of HM Brisbane Gaol on Petrie Terrace. These stories open up windows to the past and give the reader a unique insight into what Gladstone was like in the early days.

Australian Bush Poetry from the late 1800s by poet Robert Alexander Fairly who lived for a time on the Milton gold field at Norton, via Gladstone Qld, then at Burua near Gladstone, where he is buried.

'Fairly's verse is varied and often humorous but his obvious forte was in the mode of the bush ballad in which he conveys an optimistic spirit.'
