PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Fred Smith

We are well into June and here in St. John's it has been damp and cool and only now the leaves are coming out. Once we get a few sunny, warm days we will forget about all the bad weather until it comes back again next year.

Summer will start on June 21 and that is a time when many genealogists have a chance to travel. We see each other in archives, libraries and cemeteries, hopefully collecting lots of data to publish in The Ancestor. It appears that we may not have a summer student this year. We applied to the Canada Summer Jobs Program but no response to date. Across Canada many organizations that normally have a summer students are in the same situation.

Summer is when we normally have our genealogical tourism program in place. People know they are travelling to our province and often want to see the house where their parents or grandparents lived. Some want to go to a particular cemetery or some other location that has genealogical significance to them. If they contact us in advance, we will do what ever we can to link our visitors with a board member and show them the places they want to visit. Summer is also the time when we get the most visitors to our office.

Through the COVID pandemic it was quite lonely in the office but now more people are dropping in. But during the pandemic most of us got used to doing our genealogy via the internet and of course attending lectures via ZOOM. We intend to continue with ZOOM because it allows people from anywhere in the world to attend lectures but we also hope to return to in-person meetings, i.e. hybrid meetings.

We had our Annual General Meeting in June and Ethel Dempsey decided to step down from the board. We thank Ethel for her years of fantastic work for the Society and I am happy to say that Ethel will stay on as Co-editor of The Ancestor. Thank you Ethel.

I would like to welcome Janet Morrissey to the board. It is always good to have new board members because they have new ideas and ways of doing things. Janet's joining the board is also a new approach for us, because she lives in another province but will attend board meeting by ZOOM. Welcome Janet. The board will now consist of Pat Angel, Linda Crocker, Karen Darby, Paul Dunne, Max Grandy, David Pike, Craig Morrissey, Janet Morrissey, Fred Smith, Rosalind Stokes and Pat Walsh. Welcome everyone. Board elections are held every two years. Maybe in two years you would like to become a board member. The election of the executive will take place in our June meeting.

Have a good summer.

DORTHY MILDRED LAWRENCE

Written by Walter Burton

My mother, Dorothy Mildred Lawrence, was born 7 Jun 1917 in Harbour Breton, daughter of Captain James Price Lawrence and Elizabeth Ann Keeping. Dorothy attended Teacher Training at Memorial University College and was granted a Certificate on 5 Jun 1943. Attached is a letter dated August 28, 1961, from the Superintendent of Education that documents her Newfoundland teaching career from 1935 to 1946. This letter lists the schools/years where she taught, and the respective salaries earned. It also states she was awarded her Third Grade Certificate on July 1, 1936, and her First Grade Certificate on July 1, 1943.

A couple of things I remember her saying was why the sheep or goats on Bell Island had red wool was the iron ore deposits. Also, that in the winter children had to bring to school a piece of wood for the stove.

Her father, Captain Lawrence, was lost at sea aboard the Schooner Alsatian on March 4, 1935.

The Lawrence family, mother, Elizabeth; daughters, Dorothy, and Marcella and sons, Jack, and George moved to Montreal circa 1946. One daughter Olive moved to Nova Scotia. Dorothy is recorded in the 1945 Census as a boarder living at 38 Caribou Road in Corner Brook.

Dorothy married Walter Frederick Burton on November 4, 1950 in Montreal. They purchased a house on 16 Jun 1953 in Dorval, a suburb of Montreal and had two sons, Walter Lawrence in 1953 and David George in 1955.

Dorothy was granted her Interim Elementary Certificate by the Quebec Department of Education on May 22, 1950, and her permanent Elementary Diploma on May 3, 1952

Dorothy taught at the Royal Arthur School in Montreal; 1949-1953 (could have been earlier); and the Meadowbrook School in Lachine, a suburb of Montreal from 1954-1971. My recollection is that in her latter years at Meadowbrook School she taught grade two right up to her retirement in May 1971 due to health. One of her nieces, Lois Lawrence was in her Grade 2 class in 1965. (I have class photo with Lois in front row.) Lois has told me she had explicit instructions to address her as Mrs Burton, not Aunt Dot. Dorothy passed away on Jan 17, 1972

To Whom It May Concern:

Mrs. Dorothy Burton (nee Lawrence)

GOSSE/GOSS FAMILY.

By Rosalind Babb Stokes

Family history is a record of one's ancestors and the lives they have lived. We have a large collection of family names at our office. This quarter I have chosen to introduce you to the GOSSE/GOSS family.

The Gosse Family began in the west country of England. The earliest we can trace is John Gosse who was born about 1522. In 1588 he was a bailiff in Bridport, Dorset. It would be the g.g.g. grandsons of this John who first came out to Newfoundland. One researcher states that a William Gosse arrived in Dorset from Brittany, France, about 1450, an ancestor of the above John.

Between 1699 and 1711 John (1675-1750) and Richard Gosse (1677-1730) were in Torbay and worked for Abraham Barrett, who owned a large plantation there. In 1711, the Governor evicted Barrett who moved his plantation to Bread and Cheese Cove and it seems that John went with him but moved back to Torbay around 1730. Richard may have gone to Carbonear, where he established himself as a merchant. A third brother Thomas (1681-1761) maintained the family home in Bridport until the death of the father in 1726. He then set out for Newfoundland, settling in Bread and Cheese Cove around 1730 and lived there until his death in 1761. He may have taken over his brother John's property. The youngest sons of Thomas (1681-1761), Richard and Robert, prospered together building and supplying fishing craft for local planters. Most of the Gosses are from Thomas 1681 except the Torbay Gosses who are probably descendants of John 1675, although one of the family histories at our office hints that the Torbay Gosses may have arrived from Ireland.

In Newfoundland the early Gosses were Ship Builders, Captains and Merchants.

Part of the early plantation of Richard Gosse, Bread and Cheese Cove, was used as a private graveyard after his death when his brother Robert obtained it. Early members of the family are named and listed as buried there.

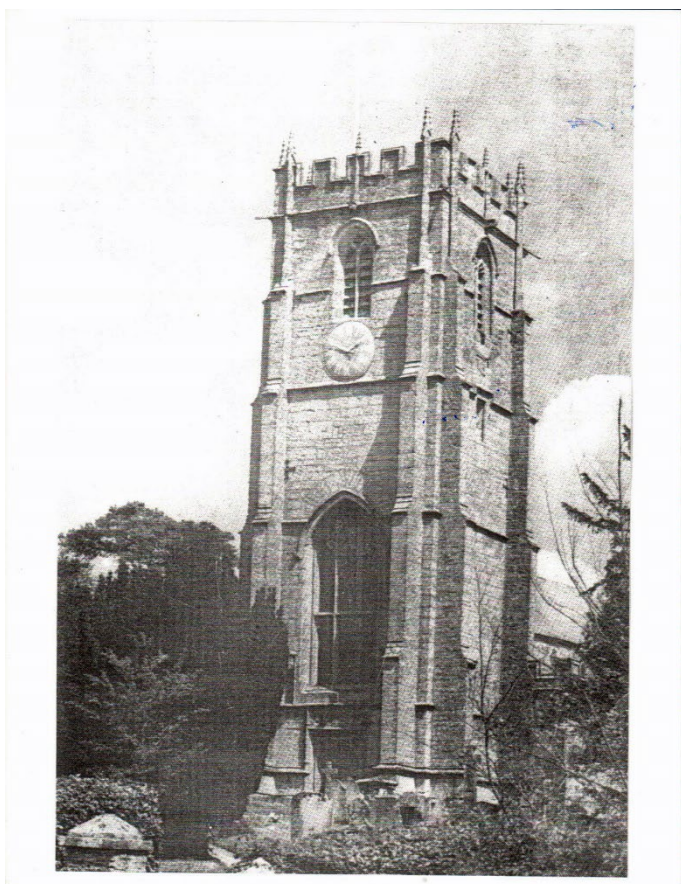

This collection will help you have a deeper understanding of why they spread out from Bread and Cheese Cove to other areas of Spaniard's Bay such as Mint Pond, Northern Cove, Green Head and other areas of Newfoundland.

We have at our office several family histories with trees. If you already have your tree done think about going beyond the birth, marriage and death dates. Come in and browse through stories, such as the loss of the schooner "Rose" under Captain Henry Gosse and the twelve who went to their watery graves in 1894 or, in 1867, the "Adamant", historically true, but with divine intervention, as told by my great grandfather Joseph Gosse (Fiddler Joe). Then in 1892 we have the "S.S. Vanguard" and the sealer's agreement with 272 names, 67 names from Spaniard's Bay. Another story of survival is of Jonathan Taylor Gosse and how he survived 10 days on an ice pan.

We recently received a very large picture collection (1000 pictures) of people who were born in Spaniard's Bay and their relatives. Names are on the back, even some family trees.

LOOKING FOR INFORMATION:

Bob Grey & his son John, aged 3.

Bob was in the US Air Force during WWII. Two friends, who wrote to each other frequently, found that they both had sons serving in different Air Forces, one in the USAF and the other in the Royal Air Force. One of the friends was in St. John's during the war. She was Catherine (Kitty) Gover (nee Congdon). Her son Sgt. Harry Gover was Killed in Action on August 10, 1942. His gravestone is in Woensel General Cemetery, North Brabant, Endhoven, Holland.

ISLE DE ST PIERRE, HUGUENOTS AND A TANGLE OF JERSEYMEN IN HARBOUR GRACE Part 15

By Pete Noel

A caution on the trees presented in this article. They have not stood the test of time and should be subject to further scrutiny. Most of the references are coming from The Samedi Court records of Jersey, the Mathews name files and Jerripedia.

W.A.Munn wrote that in 1807, amongst the primary merchants in Harbour Grace:

”...there is no mention of the Thistles, Clement, Journeaux, Juers, Paines, who fifty years previously owned nearly the whole harbour”.

1. Isle de St Pierre

THE JOURNALS OF ASHLEY BOWEN (1728-1813) OF MARBLEHEAD Schooner Betsey, William Jameson, of St. Peter's, Newfoundland		After I was shipwrecked in the Swift, I got to Bilbao and there I found some friends, viz. Captain A. Tucker, Kimball, and some Salem men. So I live well and I was advised to go Mate of a schooner to St. Peter's, Newfoundland, William Jameson, master. And [we] sailed from Bilbao [in the schooner Betsey] and arrived at St. Peter's, and I went to the Bank a-fishing till the last of September and [I was] then discharged and a bill on Mr. Griffen for my wages got to Boston safe. 1750

In the early 1700's it is pretty rare that you find references in the Samedi Court to specific locations in Newfoundland - maybe once every 10 years on average, each for Burin, Carbonear, Trinity, St John's and Harbour Grace. It really gave me a jolt therefore, when starting in 1735, I found 6 references to the Island of St Pierre in 3 years. There was a 50 year span where the Channel Islander and English fishermen operated and settled in St Pierre.

In Taverner's survey of the territory acquired from the French, he declared "the very worst" of the fishing grounds and shore stations to be "better than our former English Settlements to the NEward," claiming that "one boat at St. Peters & ca. have taken as much fish...as Three boats at most of the former English Settlements." Indeed, the island of St. Pierre, in his "humble Opinion...exceeds all the rest for Codfishing, it's a good harbour, and beech might be made for 300 Boats."

Olaf Uwe Janzen noted throughout the 1720s, British fishermen remained reluctant to push into the region. A French presence persisted in the area. This may have been a deterrent to the English but these fringe territories bordering the French (Trinity-Petit Nord & Burin) were the locales where Jerseymen had thrived in the past. The 1734 survey indicates more than half the Jersey ships were working the former French territories (especially if St Pierre is included in the Newfoundland figures). From 1713 the French were investing heavily in Labrador so presumably the Jerseymen were shoulder to shoulder with the French there.

Rosemary Ommers described a migration in Newfoundland of the of the Jersey population centre of density from Trinity in 1670 to Conception Bay at the turn of the century. Observing how the Commonwealth privateer Goodson focussed on Trinity and Bonavista to pursue Jersey vessels during the English Civil War, I would say that their presence was already well-established in that area by 1650. The fact that there was a drift to Conception Bay does not preclude a Channel Island veneer on the shores of Conception Bay from the 1600's. The defensible structure of Carbonear Island may have drawn some planters to that vicinity during the war years 1690-1713. From the 1730's there seems to have been a notable further increase in the presence of the Jerseymen in Conception Bay.

One historian bemoaned the fact that the ships of Jersey had been decimated in the wars with France. I think the opposite is true. The merchant class had launched itself into privateering which had proved lucrative. Most merchants would have been in good financial shape to shift into trade with an island fleet that was around 40 ships in 1700 (up from 12). Jersey traders operating out of West Country ports would probably raise the number by about 20%.

Unlike England where the fishing provided manpower for the nautical security of England, in the Channel Islands the privateering would provide the maritime experience for the fishery (and smuggling). Small craft were sent out employing many attackers in their swarming strategies. The limiting factor on expansion in the fish trade may have been the state of the fishery itself whose stocks seem to have hit a low in a natural cycle following the wars.

The peace of 1713 created a vacuum in prime fishing areas formerly occupied by the French. It now seems to me that, possibly, there was a significant move by the Channel Islanders into St Pierre. A Janvrin was said to occupy Magdalen Island in 1717 as well. Captain Edward Luce on the ship Dolphin (Owner Capt Lempriere) was captured by a Spanish privateer enroute from St Peter's to Poole in 1741. He may have been operating there from 1734. One case in 1736 indicates the Jerseymen were trading with or operating in Canso, Nova Scotia.

Island of St Pierre, Newfoundland Samedi Court Cases

Year	Ship	Defendants	Plaintiffs & Notes	Other	Conflict
1734	Le Philippe & Jean	Capt Richard Le Cras/owner Thomas Robin	Thomas Everay (Avery?), Freighter	to Livorno	damaged cargo
1735	Le Philippe & Jean	Capt Richard Le Cras	George Robin, freighter	to Livorno	damaged cargo
1735		Philippe De la Perelle	Jean Hubert, Philippe Vaudin and Philippe Giffard servants in fishery		owed 1/3 share
1737		Pierre Le Marinel & Pierre Malzard	Josue Le Gros, Philippe Dolbel & Noe Picot		owed for fish sold
1737	Sara	William & Robert Cleeves	Jacques Balleine, Jean Valpy dit Janvrin, Charles Petevin Dit Le Roux - claiming per agreement for return passage of 51 men and remaining fish in the ship to cover freight, damage and demurrage.
1737	La Marie	George Robin & Philippe Anley, freighters	Marie Bartlet & Edouard Murette owners - ship run aground - no contra-maistre onboard per charter party agreement
1736	Happy Rebecca	Elie Le Maistre	Owes Mathieu Mauger for passage from Canso, NS	to Alicante

It makes me wonder if this may have been a factor in the Harbour Grace boom in the 1760's. When St Pierre was returned to the French in 1763 there was a significant displacement of those who had operated there while it was an English possession. Some of the Jerseymen may have relocated to Harbour Grace. Ommer suggests that the fishery in Conception Bay was saturated and the ports were used in part, as bases for the bank fishery. She noted that the success of Jersey fishing operations eventually results in competition from settled Jerseymen (among others). Over time this would drive the free-wheeling merchant traders on to pristine locations with more economic potential. The settlers who remained are the ones of interest to family historians though.

2. The Huguenots

The tracks of the Huguenots are scarce and even more difficult to follow than the trails of the Channel Islanders. They were at the core of the early settlement of New France. The revocation of the Edict of Nantes (legal protection for the 20% portion of the population that was Protestant) in 1685, and the resultant persecutions sent a flood of refugees to safe havens around Europe and eventually the New World. Jersey, adjacent to France, was a major landing zone for them. Some stayed and some continued onwards. As in Europe, many would be driven out of the French colonies as well.

Henri Brunet was a Huguenot from La Rochelle. He had been in the Newfoundland trade for many years before being appointed director of the Compagnie des Indes Occidentales in 1670. He was involved in a busy trade with Boston in the 1670's which included Plaisance. The Faneuil family in Boston were the best known of the Huguenot merchants there. Peter Faneuil sent fishing schooners to Canso, NS where New England merchants dominated in the early 1700's. Their maternal line includes the Bureau family. I have seen records of this name in trading ventures with Jersey Huguenots. Thomas Bureau was a founder of the Bank of England in 1694.

In 1686 in Placentia, the governor Antoine Parat reported "there remains at Plaisance, as a result of my care, only one family of Huguenots".

In Jersey there were a significant number of refugees that remained. Many were in a poor state but some merchants managed to migrate and re-establish themselves in trade. A lot of the refugees married into Jersey families. Many were still in poverty 100 years later. Most would have continued on and with Newfoundland booming some would probably have worked the fishery. In the St Helier records of 1765 there is a baptism for Marie, daughter Jean Baptiste L'Etasse and Mary Livingston. It notes a baptism had already been performed in Carbonear. Marie's brother has Jean Cailleteau as a godfather. The Cailleteaus were a family of merchant Huguenots in Jersey.

The Huguenots having names that are neither English nor of Jersey may account for some of the difficulty in decyphering some of the early records in Newfoundland.

3. The Paynes

From Jerripedia re Payns: this name is the most ancient known in Western Europe. Long prior to the age of genealogical research, before the Saxons had invaded Britain, and before the Scandinavians had occupied Neustria, families or sects bearing the generic name of Pagani, descendants of the veterans of old Rome, are mentioned by classic writers. So early as AD 350, says the Abbe Floury, in his Ecclesiastical History, the Emperor Constantino, when departing from Antioch against Maxentius, assembled his troops, and designated by this title those soldiers of his army who had not received baptism.

There are a number of records of Philip Payne in Harbour Grace during the 1750's. In 1738, in the Jersey Samedi Court, a Philippe Payn is in dispute over the rental of a property in Newfoundland to Nicolas Le Cras. This is probably Philippe Payne Jr. The property was owned in a partnership and the agreement involved an exchange of rum. The partnership seems to have included the Cailleteau family. In 1712 Philippe Payne was operating a tavern in St Helier. This was often the case for merchant families trading in alcohol. In 1714 a Pierre Cailleteau was in court for taxes due on a tavern. Possibly they were already partners.

Philippe Payne Sr was married to Marguerite Le Clerq about 1700 and had two sons Clement (1701) and Philippe (1703). He seems to have died soon after. There is no burial record in Jersey. Possibly he died elsewhere. Marguerite Le Clerq remarried to Elisee Mauger in 1708. Elisee Mauger was also the godfather of Philippe Jr. As a result Philippe Payne Jr had half brothers (Elizee, Clement, Jean) who were Mangers. These were not the main line of trading Mangers from St Brelade. This line was from St Helier.

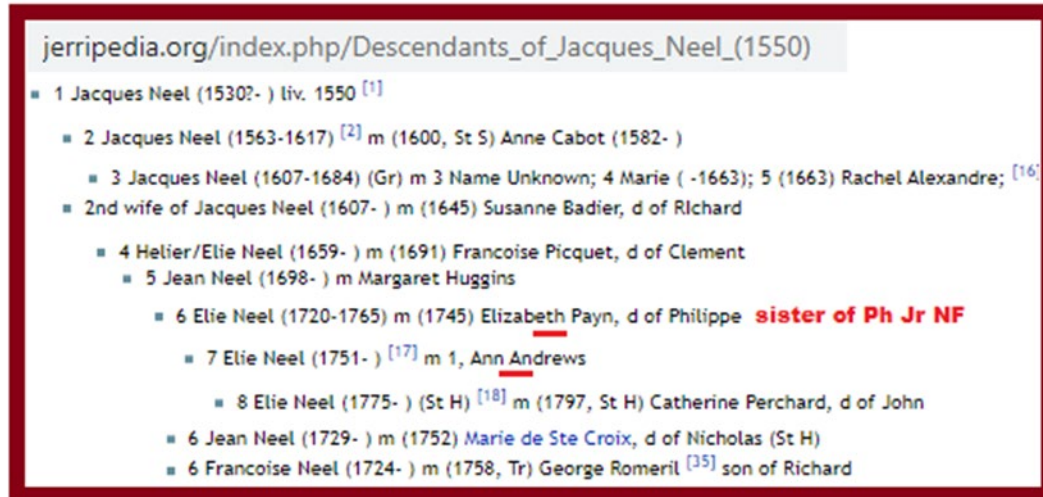

The John Davis accounts record a salary owed to Mrs Mauger in 1740. It was possibly Philippe Payne's mother or a sister-in-law.

Philippe Payne Jr married Francoise Elizabeth Cailleteau in 1723. This is likely the Philippe who owned the property in Newfoundland in 1738. In 1733 Philippe Payne was the captain of the ship La Jeanne routed to London. In 1735 David Cailleteau was washed overboard in a storm off the coast of Jersey. The captain of the ship Charming Nenny (Charming Nancy?) was Philippe Payn Jr. David Cailleteau appears to have been Philippe's brother-in-law. Philippe Payne was captain and part owner of the ship Anne in 1735-7. In 1737 he was listed as the Captain of the Success sailing from Southampton to the Mediteranean. In 1751 Philippe Payne (Possibly Philippe III) as captain of the ship Mary sailing from Newfoundland to the Mediteranean. In 1752 the Mathews files show Philippe Payne as captain of the ship Cato (Cailleteau) trading to the Mediteranean. In 1755 Philippe Payne was the agent for Ludlow and Cailleteau in Harbour Grace. He was on a Bill of Exchange for the firm with Benjamin Mason, a merchant of Newport, Rhode Island. Payne and Cailleteau owned a sloop, The Duke of Cumberland, that was fishing the banks that was wrecked the same year. The Captain of this ship that year was a Touzel. It had previously been captained for 10 years by Jean Lys, an in-law of the Cailleteaus. In 1761-2 Phillip Payne is captain of the ship Carter. Possibly this is another corruption of the name Cailleteau.

I do not have Elizee Mauger connected to Newfoundland but he was a trader. He was in court for exporting wool to France.

Philippe Payne III was born in 1726. He or his father appear to be the one recorded in Harbour Grace in the 1750's. Philippe III was married to Marie Thistle (Touzel?).

Philippe III had a sister Jeanne (also Elizabeth). Jeanne married Elie Neel (pronounced Nayle?) in 1745. Their son, Elie Jr, was born in Newfoundland. He married Anne Andrews. He may have been the Shipowner/Captain Elie Neel of Jersey.

There seem to be John Paynes in Harbour Grace and St John's. It is not clear if they fit into this family line. In 1765 William Payne stated that his family held property in Harbour Grace since 1705. A Jean Payn is in the Jersey Court in 1716 concerning a transaction involving George Mugford in Newfoundland. In 1733 Jean Payn was in a dispute over 4 years salary which had commenced in 1722 for his servant Edouard Journeaux.

In 1728 Thomas Payne Jr was owed money by Abraham Le Marquand Jr for his fish. It seems likely this was the Thomas Payne who had married Sara Le Marquand daughter of Abraham. The Abraham in court was likely the brother of Sara.

Nicholas Payne seems to have been present in Newfoundland in 1738 but settled in Poole. There he was still referred to as a Newfoundland merchant in 1758. Sara Le Marquand above was the godmother of Thomas, son of Nicolas Payn and Jeanne Payn in 1732 in St Helier.

4. The Cailleteaus (hat tip to DA)

The Cailleteaus were shipowning Huguenot traders who settled in Jersey. They married into another Huguenot family, the Lys, in Southampton. The Paynes, Cailleteaus and the Lys were trading frequently between Jersey, Southampton and the New World.

In 1715 Pierre Cailleteau was involved in a dispute over salt. Jacques Vibert, the Newfoundland trader was one of the ones involved with him.

In 1718 the Cailleteaus were trading in tobacco at Isle de Rhe, off La Rochelle. Pierre Calleteau, was the son of Jeremie, merchant, and Jeanne Beluteau, of the village of Segonzac in Xaintonge. His wife Louise Lys, was the daughter of Pierre Lys merchant and Elizabeth Sorre, de l'isle de Rhe. Louise Lys seems to have carried on the family business after the death of her husband. Jacques Lys and wife Marie Rousset (later Roussel?) were residents of St Brelade in Jersey.

In 1721 Jacques Lys, Pierre Cailleteau and Noe Le Geyt are in court seeking compensation for losses on the cider they shipped from Jersey to Southampton. In 1727 Pierre Cailleteau is in court with the other partners of the privateer "L'Union" to resolve the accounts. Peter Cailleteau Jr is recorded as a forwarding agent at Southampton from 1735-1758. In 1739 Philippe Cailleteau was captain of the ship Endeavor shipping tobacco from London to Morlaix.

The Lys may have eventually been linked to the Huguenot Bureau family as Louis Bureau, a ship-owner operating in Jersey, was married to Sara Rousset by 1763.

Some Lys ship captains noted on Jerripedia:

Lys, James - Three Brothers 1796, Harmony 1803, Favourite 1805, Young Peggy 1807
 Lys, John - Duke of Cumberland 1744-54, Francis 1747-48, Prince of Wales 1748-51,

The first recorded meeting of the founders of the Chamber of Commerce was held at Peter Lys' "King's Head" on the 24th February, 1768 (I cannot place him on the family tree).

6. John Clements, 18th Century Merchant of Bristol and Conception Bay

The trail of John Clements origin is confused and unclear. The following notes provide a speculative whiff of a possible family trail. It requires further study.

The direction of my research was dictated by a reference from note on the plantation records of 1804. It was recorded by the historian Munn in the Spring 1936 Newfoundland Quarterly:

“On the Southside of Harbour Grace, the executors of John Clement claim 330 yards waterfront west from the Stone House. The Noels and the Yetman’s still living there are also originally Jersey families and related to the Clements”.

At the peak of his career, John Clement was perhaps the largest merchant in Conception Bay. With extensive operations spread throughout the bay. He went bankrupt in 1794 but his estate had more than £10,000 in accounts receivable. He (and his clients) may have been hit by a catch failure in 1792. With the outbreak of war in 1793 the saltfish market experienced a production and price decline as well (Shannon Ryan).

The Clements of St Brelade, Jersey were a significant merchant family. They became a more significant player in the Newfoundland fishery in the 1800’s. Jerripedia has the merchant John Clement placed in a tree on this family line. The records coming from the Jersey side, however, do not mesh with those coming from Newfoundland. There are 2 other John Clements on that tree but these have established family units as well that conflict with the Newfoundland data. The best fitting scenario I have found so far is from a different small line that starts in Grouville, Jersey. The table above summarizes some significant facts. This scenario accounts for records found in Jersey, Newfoundland and Bristol but further study is required with some cautionary notes below.

Some Additional Notes:

In 1695 Jean Clement of Philippe was baptised in Grouville. The godparents were Sarah Vautier (wife of Jean Clement?) and Bernaby Averty. Bernaby Averty had been noted as a paying the Dixieme Tax on Fish (1685-94). Philippe Clement was probably John’s brother.

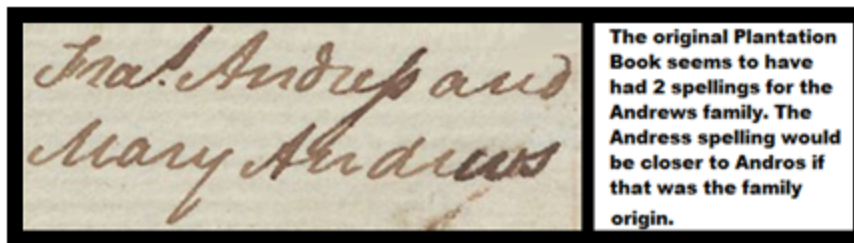

There are other Clement families in Bristol and this may be the death of a different Elizabeth.

John Clement’s birth and death as shown make him 75 at the time of his death not 80.

It is possible that the Bristol Mariner John Clement is a different individual.

7. The Andrews

Matthew Martin in his recollections of Harbour Grace stated “the first inhabitants of Harbour Grace were Jerseymen (and Guernseyman) namely the Martins, Paynes, Andrews and Browns. He stated that the Andrews family owned the “Jersey Room” adjacent to the Payne property and much later purchased by Jonathan Noel. Seary believed that the family had held land in the Port de Grave and Harbour Grace areas from the 1670’s.

David Anstey passed me an early hand written transcription (above) of the Harbour Grace plantation records of 1805. Unlike the typed transcriptions this had two spellings for Andrews.

The Address spelling seems to align with ship captains from Guernsey in the Matthews files. Andros is a family name in Guernsey. The Andrews surname is rare in Jersey. A Captain Gideon Andrew signed a petition in Newfoundland in 1705.

8. The Touzels (Thistles?)

In 1734 Jean Touzel is in court trying to collect payment for a gallon of rum he sold to Jean Amy son of Phillipe in Harbour Grace. Jean Touzel is described as Jean son of Jean son of Nicollas. The next week it is the same Jean Touzel in court for having sold cider in Jersey without a licence. The Nicollas in his line may be of St Clement and the husband of Susanne Mourant.

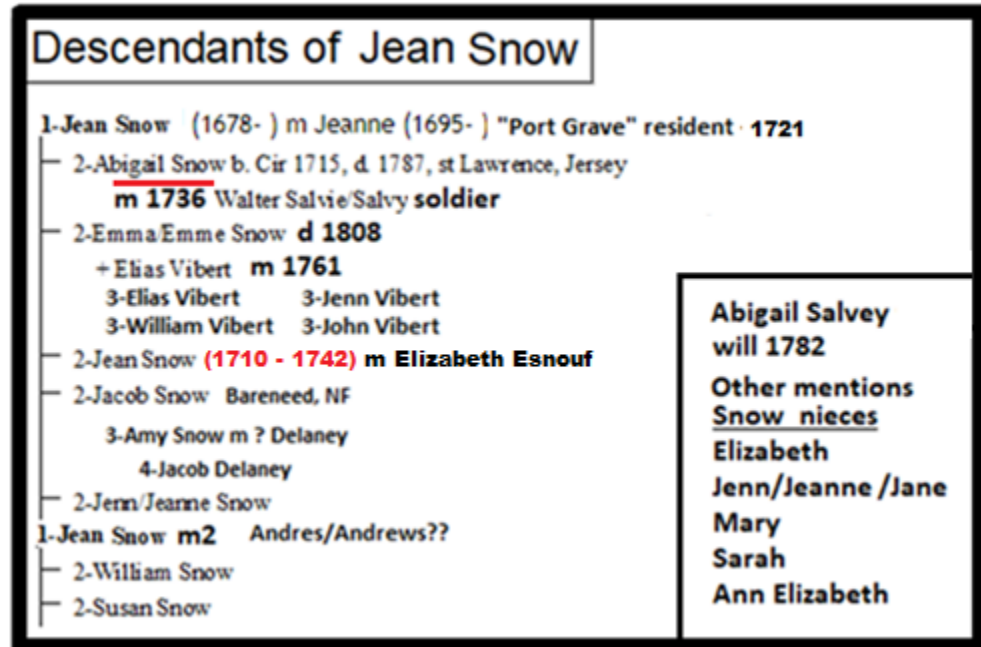

In 1735 Thomas Tissel (Touzel) and Nick Sewer (Le Sueur) have their boat Les Deux Freres seized in Jersey. It is taken as security and sold based on a note of Nicolas Fiott who freighted on the ship and Jean Vibert who is trying to collect. The names of the owners of the ship seem to have anglicised their names. I think it is likely that they have been residents in Newfoundland. This could be the Thomas Thistle who was a constable in Conception Bay in 1729. Nick Sewer appeared in the John Davis accounts of Mosquito in 1744.

9. More on John Snow (b 1678) and Resident of Port de Grave

I tripped over a will that gives a clear picture of this Snow family unit. The father of this family unit is probably John Snow who was on Little Belle Island in 1709. It is believed he was first married to Jeanne Snow (a cousin).

Abigail Salvey (nee Snow) left a will dated 1782. She lists her family members as shown in the chart below. She has brothers, John and Jacob, who connect her to the core of the Snow family operating in Newfoundland. Jacob was recorded in Port de Grave and John Snow Sr was also there but seems to have setup in Harbour Grace with John Jr. Emma Snow was a name that was unattached to a tree. Abigail names Emma, the wife of Elie Vibert of Newfoundland as her sister. She names Jenn (or Jane/Jeanne) as another sister. Interestingly, she names a half brother William and a half sister Susan. Possibly their mother was an Andrews.

Father Jean Snow Sr was periodically sending money from Newfoundland to his daughter in Jersey. In 1731 he used Thomas Gruchy with a bill of exchange sent on John Davis (of Mosquito). Jeanne Pynn is mentioned. In 1736 he again sent a bill of exchange written on John Davis.

10. The Noels

I have been telling folks they need to consider their Jersey ancestors being in Newfoundland a generation or two earlier than the first available record. I thought the Noels were done when Philippe Noel appeared in 1741. It now appears Clement Noel was staying over the winter in 1716. More research is required to check that he ties in as expected.

11. Some Minor Snow Family Tree Changes

In the Samedi Court of 1715 the children of Thomas Snow Sr are trying to resolve the issues with his estate. His death goes unrecorded in the parish records and therefore the lifespans of various Thomas Snows on the long-established tree are misaligned. Knowing Thomas died earlier than believed helps to sort out some of the ships captained by the family. In court his daughter Rachel is also named. She seems to be the unknown Rachel who married Thomas Martel.

In 1717 in the Samedi Court we also find a record of Abraham Snow. It names his wife as Marie Poingdestre and indicates she is guardian of the couple's children. She is trying to collect a debt on her husband's behalf. Marie is possibly the daughter of Damian Poingdestre and born in 1666. There are no baptismal records for the children of Abraham Snow. In 1712 a Damian Poingdestre was Armateur for the privateer Hunter. In 1714 a Damian Poingdestre is seeking papers sent by John Snow and Andre Le Marquand concerning his son Jean who has died in Newfoundland.

Nicollas Le Cras (renting premises from Philippe Payne in Harbour Grace) was a partner with John Snow Sr. in the ships Jolly Batchelor and God's Gift from 1731 to 1735. In 1736 the ship God's Gift was sold in Jersey to cover wages owed.

TRACING 19TH CENTURY NEW WORLD FAMILIES BACK TO THE OLD WORLD

The Sad Story of One Such Family

By Aiden Holden

When we reach the point of success in building out the branches of our family tree we often encounter an ancestor who was a first generation immigrant. If local records make no mention of their origins, how do we proceed? It may seem a daunting task, and it often is, but if the ancestor in question came from the United Kingdom there is a mitigating factor in the abundance of surviving eighteenth and nineteenth century records in England, Scotland, Wales and the Channel Islands including detail census data starting in 1841. Sometimes the key to solving a mystery lies in an innocuous bit of information.

John Satterly first appeared in Newfoundland records when he married Eliza Chafe at Petty Harbour in 1864. The marriage record yields no hint as to whence he came or even his age. Only from his death record do we know he was born in England but that record, too, gives no information as to a town or county. A search for John Satterly born about 1836 in England brings up countless possibilities. That is not surprising considering the population of the United Kingdom was eighteen and one-half million in 1841. The problem seems insurmountable when you contemplate the yesteryear practice of repeating given names over and over from generation to generation.

The clue which led to discovering John's origins was a given name. The names of his eleven children appear ordinary enough except for one puzzling choice. The moniker given his fourth child Ralph Tremills Satterly appears to be precise and purposeful suggesting a strong connection to someone with that name. By the middle of the nineteenth century the Tremills surname in Petty Harbour had largely evolved into a shortened Mills version. However, a simple search of marriages in England for any two people with surnames Tremills and Satterly brings up an Alice Satterly who married a James Tremills in 1839 in Devon. A good next step would be to search for this couple on the 1841 census of England. In this case that census presented a couple of interesting surprises. First, it revealed the young couple had a newborn son whom they named Ralph. A fascinating coincidence perhaps, but even more intriguing, and demanding more investigation, is the enumeration on that census of an older five-year-old son born in 1836 named John Tremills. He appears to be born three years before the marriage. A search for a baptism record for a John Tremills born in 1836 to James and Alice in that area is not fruitful. Yet, a little more digging unearths a birth record of a John Satterly born 1836 to an unmarried Alice Satterly; from there everything falls in place.

Alice Satterly was twenty-three years old and a spinster when she gave birth to a son John Satterly in 1836 at Hexworthy, Devonshire, England. His father is not known, but by the time John was three years old he gained a stepfather when his mother married the bachelor James Tremills, who was a tailor working and living in Lydford, Devonshire. The marriage took place April 15, 1839 when James was thirty-five and Alice twenty-six. John Satterly was raised by his mother and stepfather and was listed on the 1841 Linchaford, Widecombe census as John Tremills rather than John Satterly, age five. This suggests the stepfather raised him as his own although we can observe that John used his mother's maiden name throughout the remainder of his life. Ten years later the 1851 census for Linchaford, Widecombe enumerates:

James Tremills 47, tailor, deaf
 Alice 37
 Ralph 10
 Elizabeth Ann 8
 Nancy 5
 Mary 2

This census tells us the family had three more children by then and that John is no longer living with them. However, we can find him living about two miles away on Samuel Mann's farm in Pondsworthy age fourteen and employed as a farm servant; the same type of work he was destined to do within ten years in a new country.

John Satterly leaves Devon permanently shortly before 1861 when he and his half-brother Ralph Tremills set out for Petty Harbour, Newfoundland. John would have been around twenty-three and Ralph around eighteen. Setting sail for Newfoundland was not acting particularly venturesome considering previous generations of the family had already broken the trail. Most recently their stepfather/father's brother John Tremills settled at Petty Harbour in the 1820's where he met and married Elizabeth Chafe in 1830. This John Tremills was in fact a twin to James—i.e. the James Tremills married to Alice Satterly.

James Tremills had been born in 1804, one of a set of twins born to Nathaniel Tremills and Ann Chafe at Widecombe in the Moor, Devonshire. John and James Tremills were baptized together on April 24, 1804.ⁱ Although the record does not specifically state that they were twins we can conclude as much based on their ages in their death records, many years later, which both point to a birth in the year 1804.ⁱⁱ

Born in 1813, Alice Satterly is the youngest known child of John Satterly (1772–1845) and Jane Hannaford (1772–1845). John and Jane Satley [Satterly], both 70 as well as their oldest son Thomas, 35 can be seen on the 1841 census for Lydford Parish, Devonshire living at Sally Lane Cottage near Hexworthy, a rural area now part of Dartmoor National Park. That census states both John and his son Thomas are employed in farm labour.

Jumping back to the story of Alice's son and his half-brother, now living in Newfoundland, we can surmise that things were looking up for both John Satterly and Ralph Tremills in their new home in Newfoundland, at least for the first few years. Both soon found employment as farm labourers¹ and not long afterwards, life partners. John married Eliza Chafe in 1864 and Ralph married Lucilla Chafe two years later. John and Eliza's marriage record states he was a bachelor and she a spinster and that both were residents of Petty Harbour. Ralph and Lucilla's marriage record does similarly. The Chafes were an extensive Petty Harbour family that also had roots in Devon.

Ralph and Lucilla were blessed with a healthy son in 1867 and another in 1869. In April 1869 Ralph inherited a house and garden near Flatrock while John got half the garden at Flatrock from their uncle John Tremills—their father's twin. But in August 1870 tragedy struck when Ralph died at age 29. A year later, on June 22, 1871 John and Eliza named their newborn son Ralph Tremills Satterly in honour of John Satterly's half-brother and close friend. By so doing, the family unknowingly ensconced the sole clue which provided the means to solve the mystery of where they came from.

Misfortune and misery also dogged John and Eliza. Ralph was their fourth child but the first two had already died by the time he was born. Within a year this new baby was also gone. John and Eliza had seven more children by 1883. Of their eleven children only one survived to adulthood. Most died as babies, Robert Henry was two and a half and Mary Ann seven when they died from diphtheria. Edward was not quite four.

Perhaps it was this harrowing string of deaths that pushed John and Eliza to leave Petty Harbour around 1876 and move to St John's. In about 1890 they took their sole remaining child John James Satterly and moved to Toronto. The 1891 census for Toronto lists:

John Setterley [Satterly] 53 head, married, born England,
 Eliza Setterley 48 wife, born Newfoundland
 John James Setterley 17 son, single, born Newfoundland

The 1901 census for Toronto lists John Satterly, married, born England, living in some sort of unidentified group setting, (perhaps a nursing home). It appears to be our John Satterly even though his age is listed as 50 (it should be 65). The stated country of birth and marital status lends some credibility to that conclusion. Meanwhile, Eliza is also on the 1901 census for Toronto Ward 3 where she notes her exact date of birth as August 20, 1845. Her true date of birth was August 20, 1842 but the fact she took three years off her age is not uncommon in census data. She also states that she is married and that she emigrated to Canada in 1890. John died August 30, 1908. The death record gives his age as sixty-nine and includes other details such as that he lived at 54 Agnes Street, Toronto, was married, born in England and worked as a labourer. Eliza's death record states she died March 6, 1918 a widow with residence at 999 Queen St. W., Toronto.

John and Eliza's only child to survive childhood was John James Satterly (let's call him John Jr.) born June 1, 1873 in Petty Harbour. He married Elizabeth Hurst on November 29, 1899 in Toronto. Soon they had their one and only child born May 8, 1900. It is fair to assume the child was stillborn as it was not given a name. Both the 1901 and 1911 censuses for Toronto show that John Jr. and Elizabeth are living together with no children. In 1915 they move to Detroit and in September 1918 John Jr. was drafted into service in World War I. His draft registration card confirms his correct birth date and place of birth, lists his employment as auto body builder at Wilson Body Co., his next of kin as Elizabeth Satterly (his wife), and home as 1573 Beaubien St., Detroit. The 1920 census for Detroit further confirms the same facts and lists no children. On August 15, 1921 John Jr. and Elizabeth crossed the border into Ontario and returned October 27, 1921 through Detroit when they report their permanent address as 1509 Beaubien St., his work as an auto body builder, and their nearest relative being his sister-in-law Mrs. Thomas Henderson of 540 Dupont St., Toronto.

John Jr. and Elizabeth moved back to Ontario late in the summer of 1929. Elizabeth had spent only four weeks back in Ontario when she died September 4, 1929. John Jr. was the informant on his wife's death record which indicates he was then living at 540 Dupont St., Toronto and that his wife had spent two weeks at Toronto Western Hospital where she suffered from pneumonia and chronic nephritis with a notation that she died by suicide through carbolic acid poisoning. He gives her birth day as August 8 but no year, suggesting he was not certain; 54 is written in as her age although it was 58. By 1935 John Jr. was living in Burton, a tiny and remote locality in the District of Parry Sound, now part of the municipality of Whitestone and only accessible by train. He was discovered dead there May 11, 1944. John James Satterly's branch of the tree ended with him.
